I found them, now I remember, The red tag as per clear span was the bearing point down, I believe that was our 1st question for clear span, up or down, cause If I remember there were several areas where we butted several sections together and the red tags did not work as far as the notching was concerned

yup, and a white tag at the top, did not indicate either up or down, in 1st pick it shows the end notch with red tag down, and white up and as per clear span was correct
