A photograph of a store's exterior wall. The wall is made of light-colored concrete blocks. A red horizontal band runs across the wall. Below the band is a white sign with a red border. The sign has the text "LIFE OUT HERE" in large, bold, red letters, and "MOOSE. LOVE WHERE YOU LIVE." in smaller, black letters below it. A red line points to a loose concrete block at the top of the wall, just above the sign. A white text box with a red line pointing to the block contains the text: "Block piece literally popped out of wall and fell in front of me inside! Missed me by a couple feet."

Block piece literally popped out of wall and fell in front of me inside! Missed me by a couple feet.

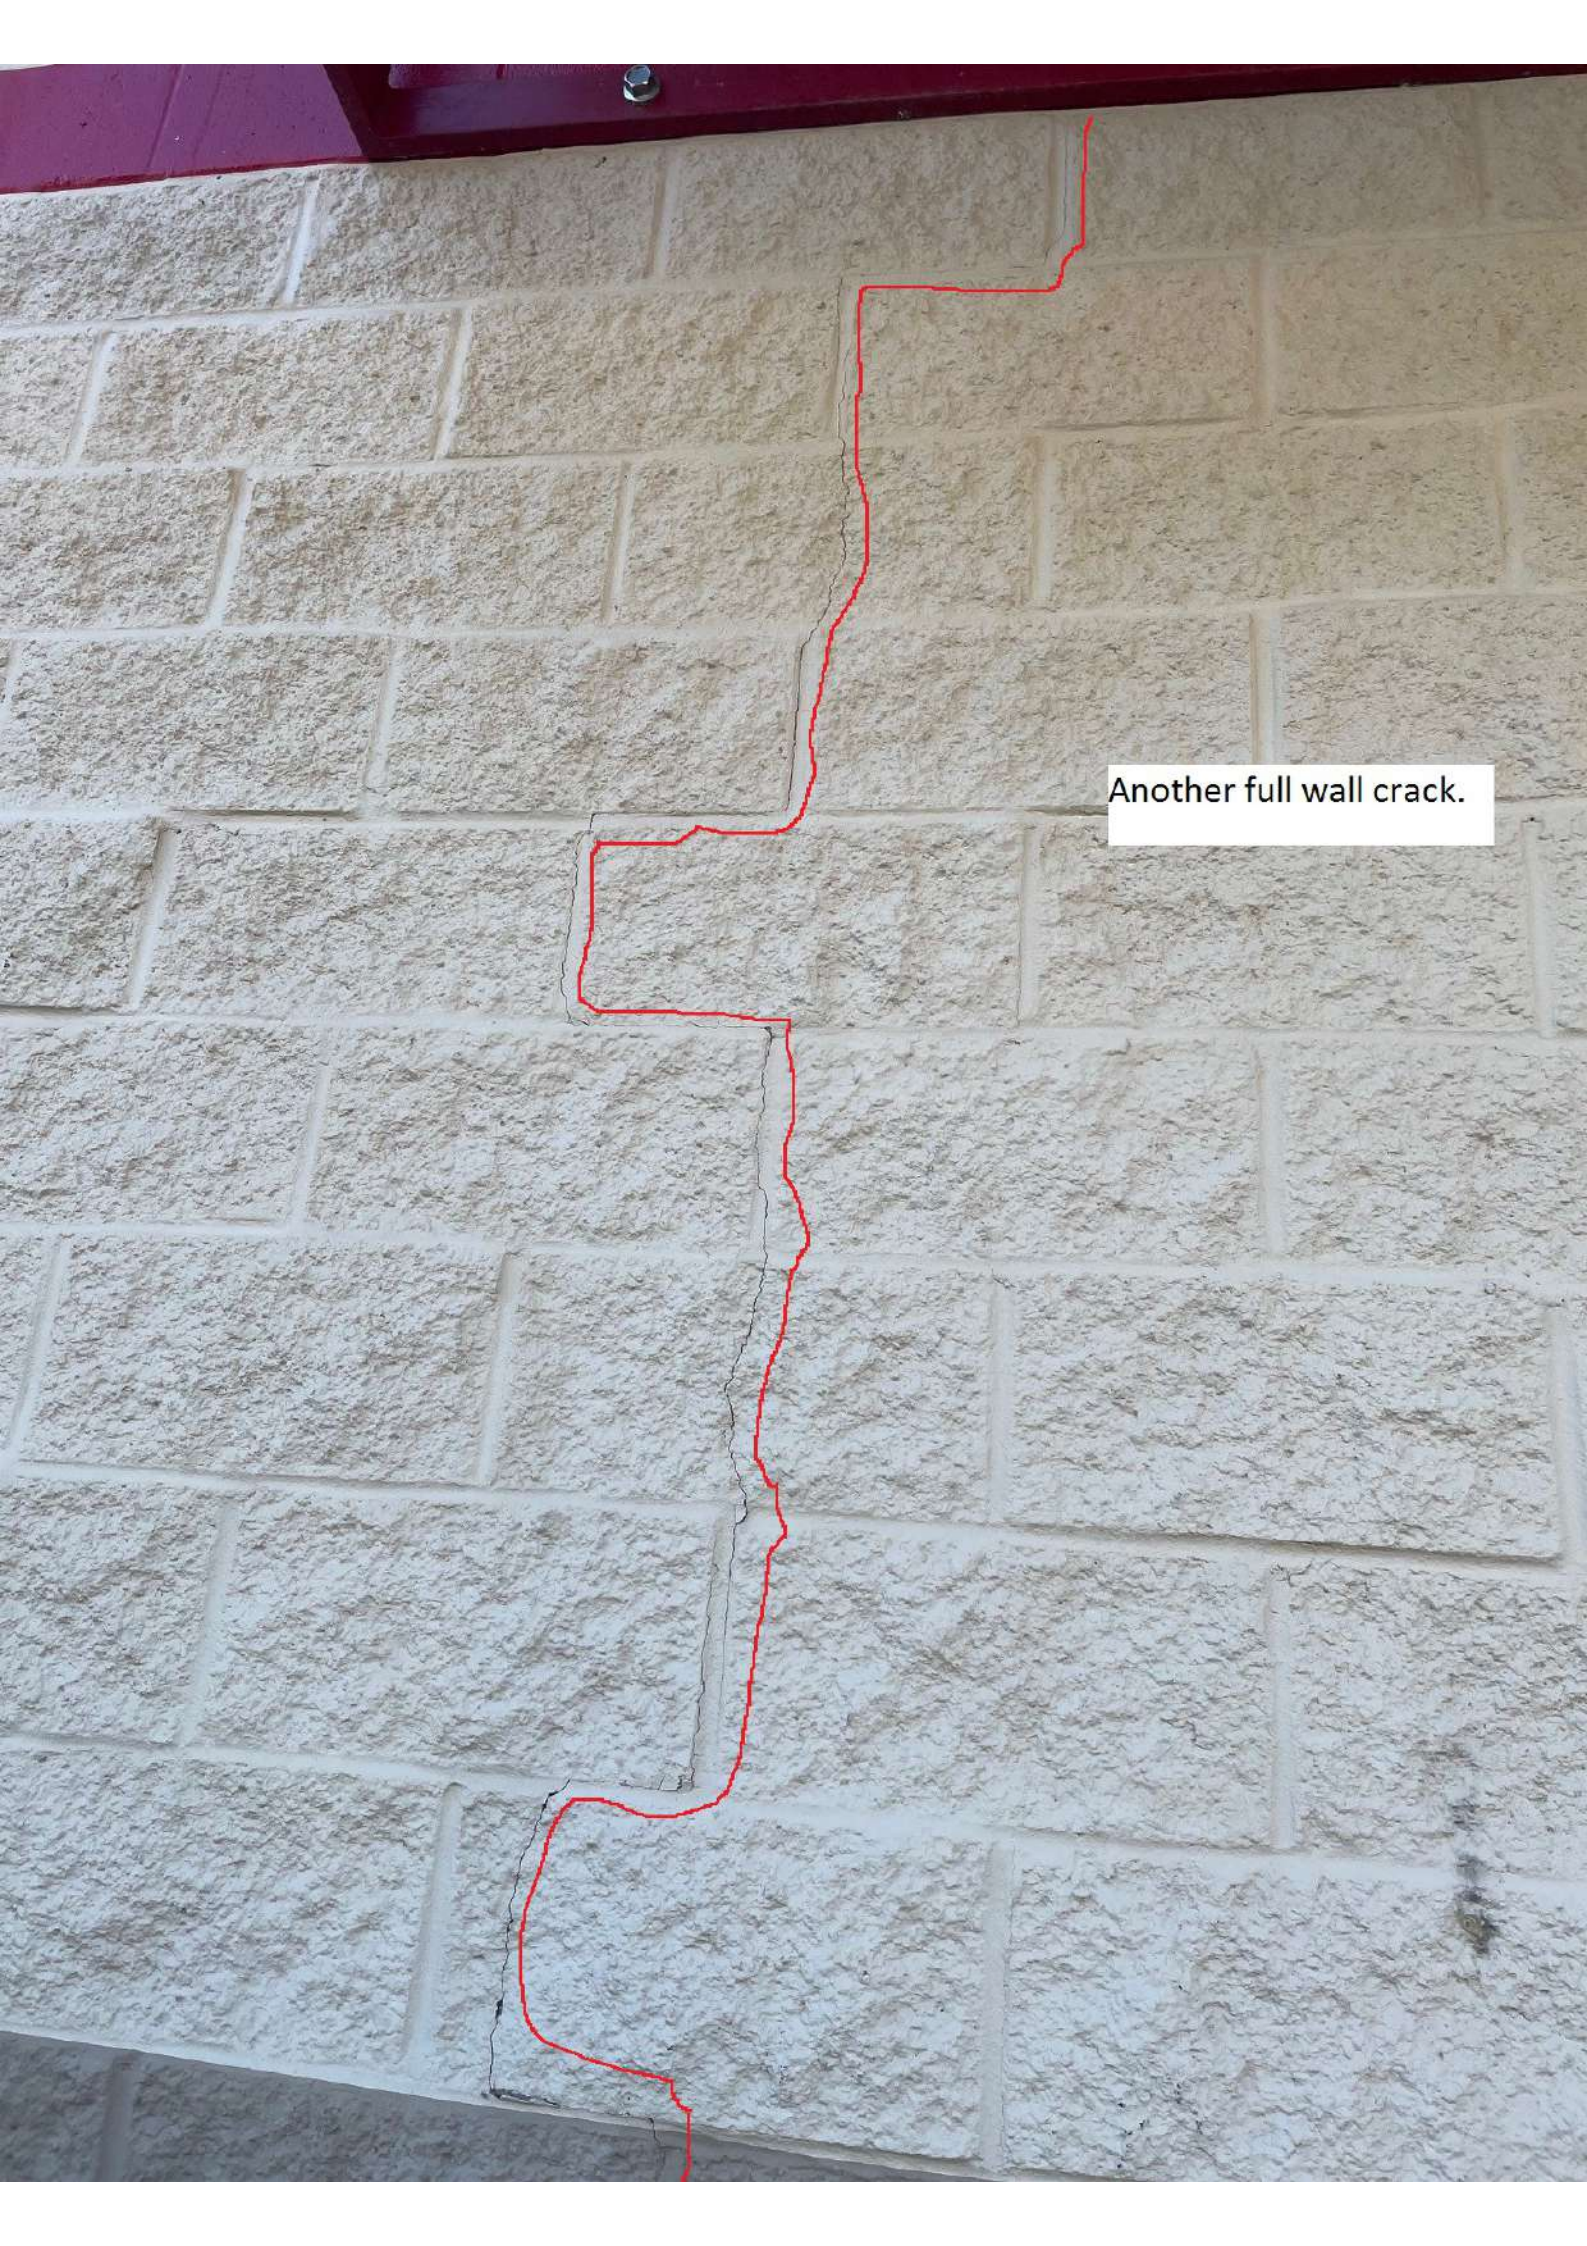

LIFE OUT HERE
MOOSE. LOVE WHERE YOU LIVE.

Piece of concrete block that missed my head by a step or two!

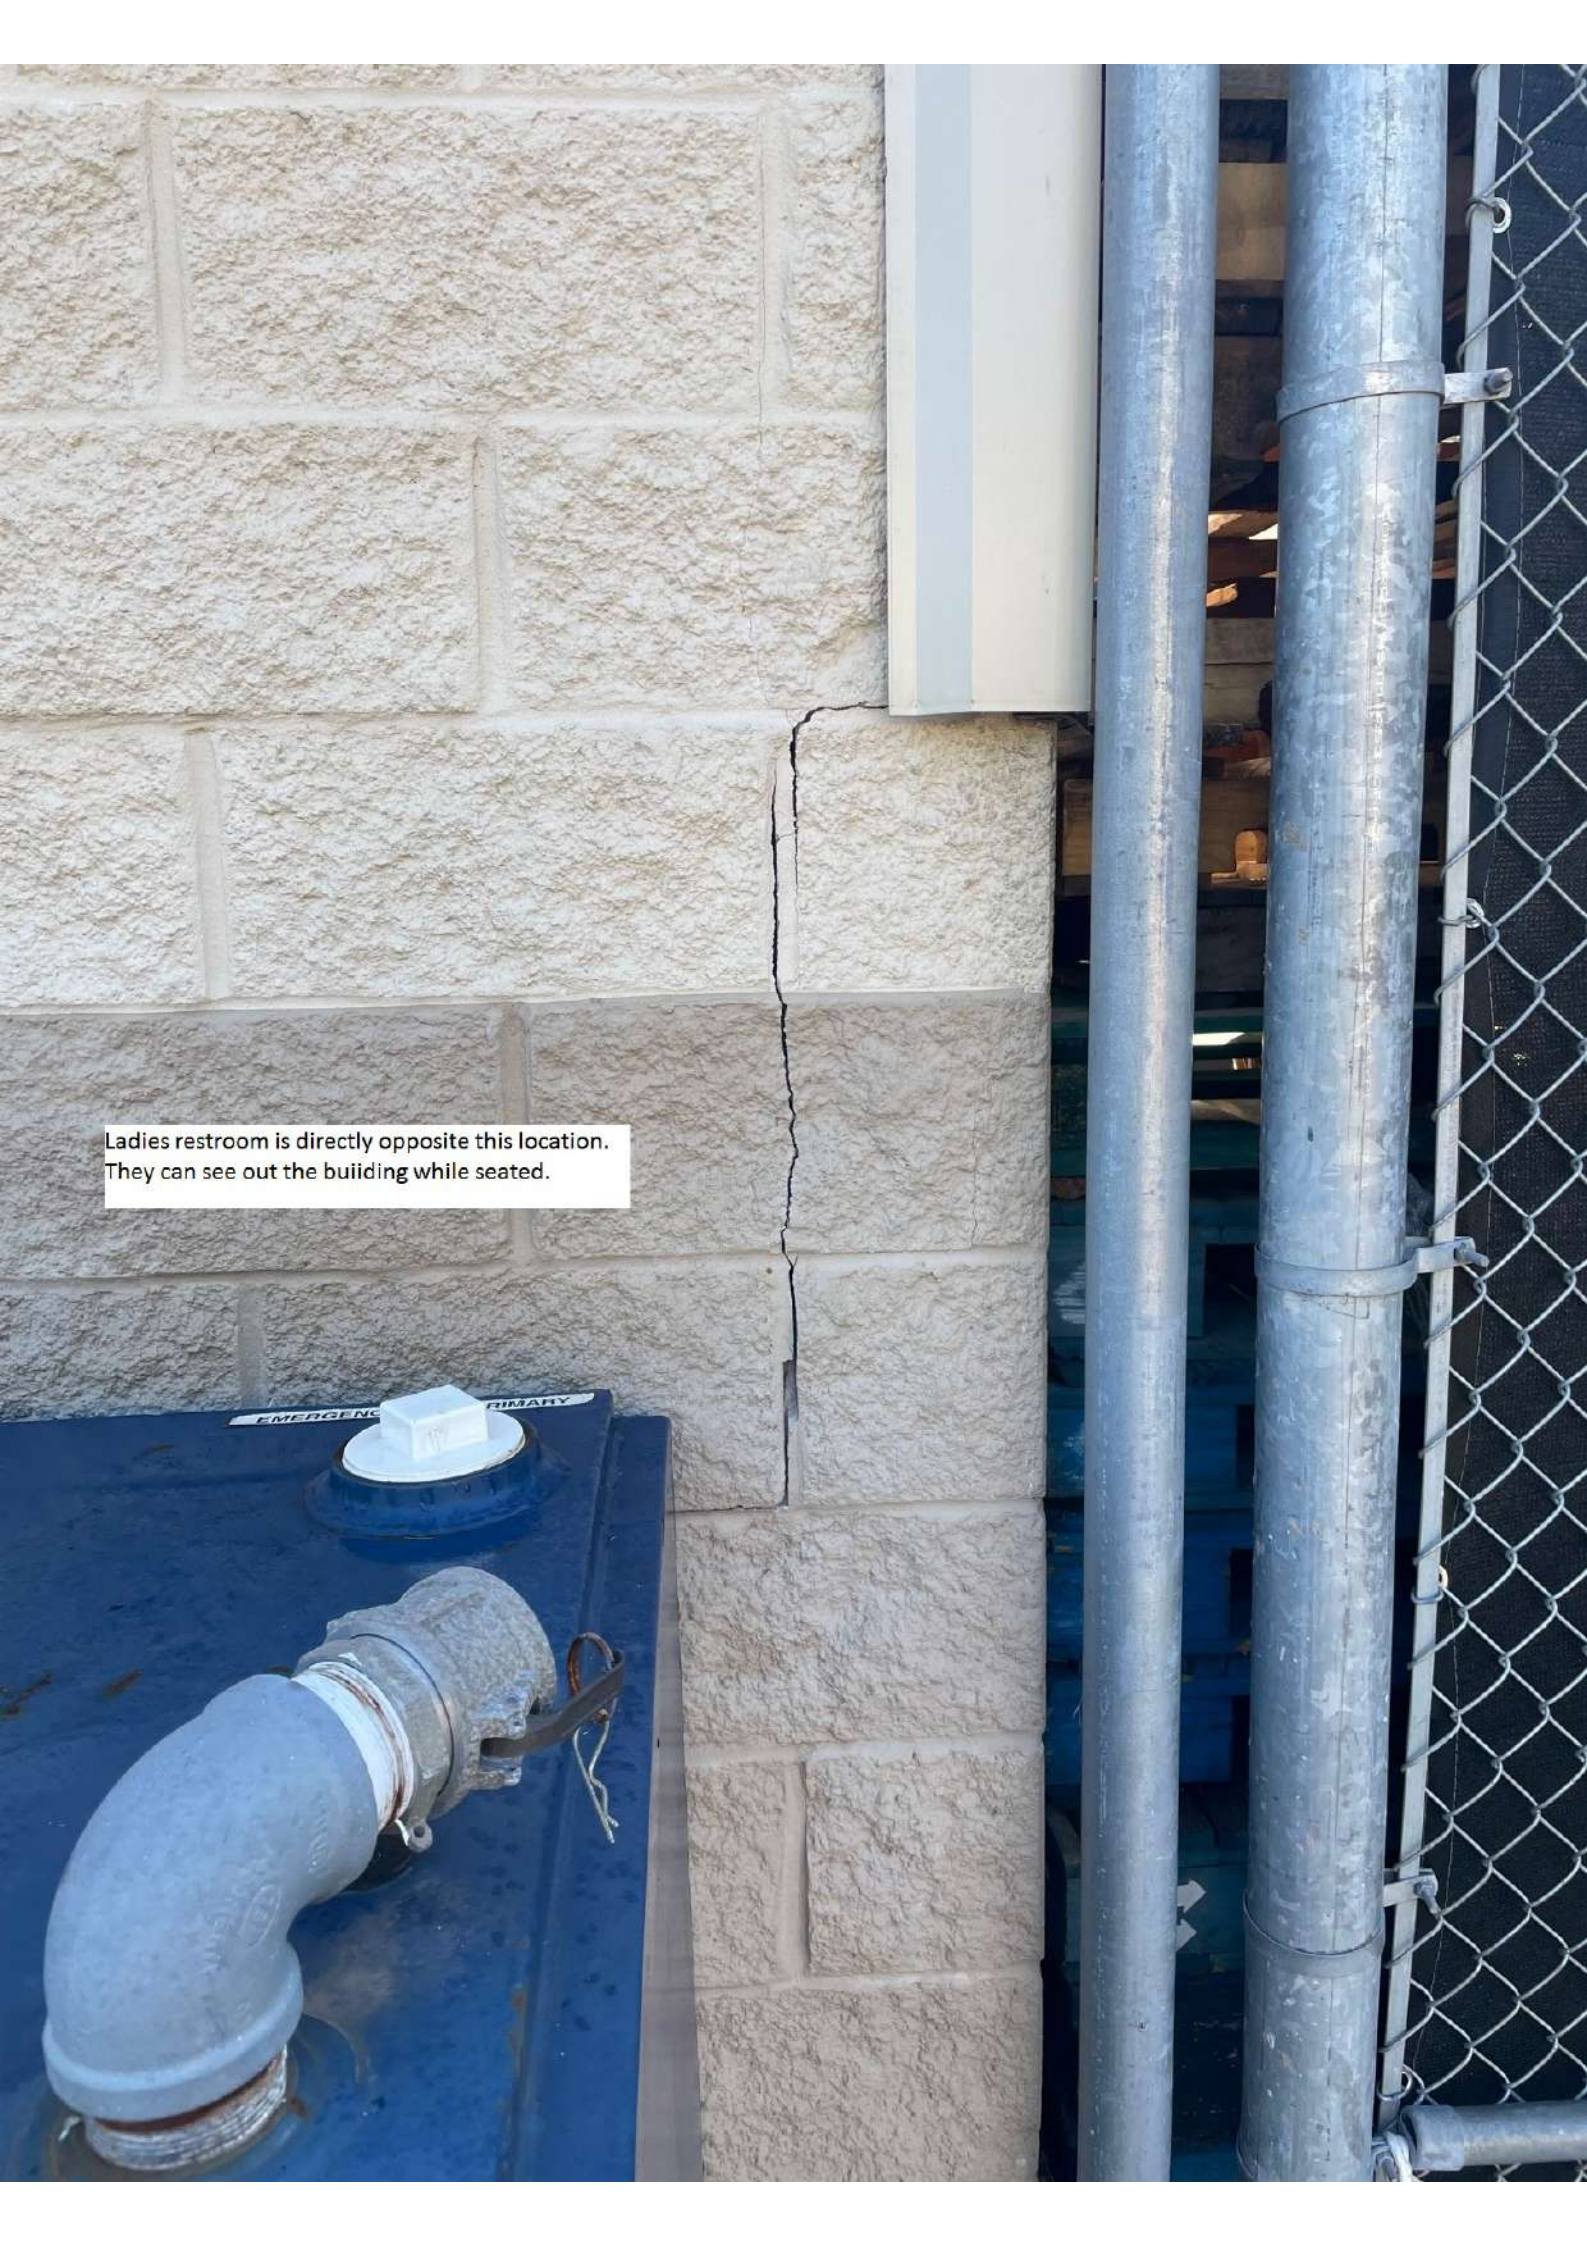

Another full wall crack.

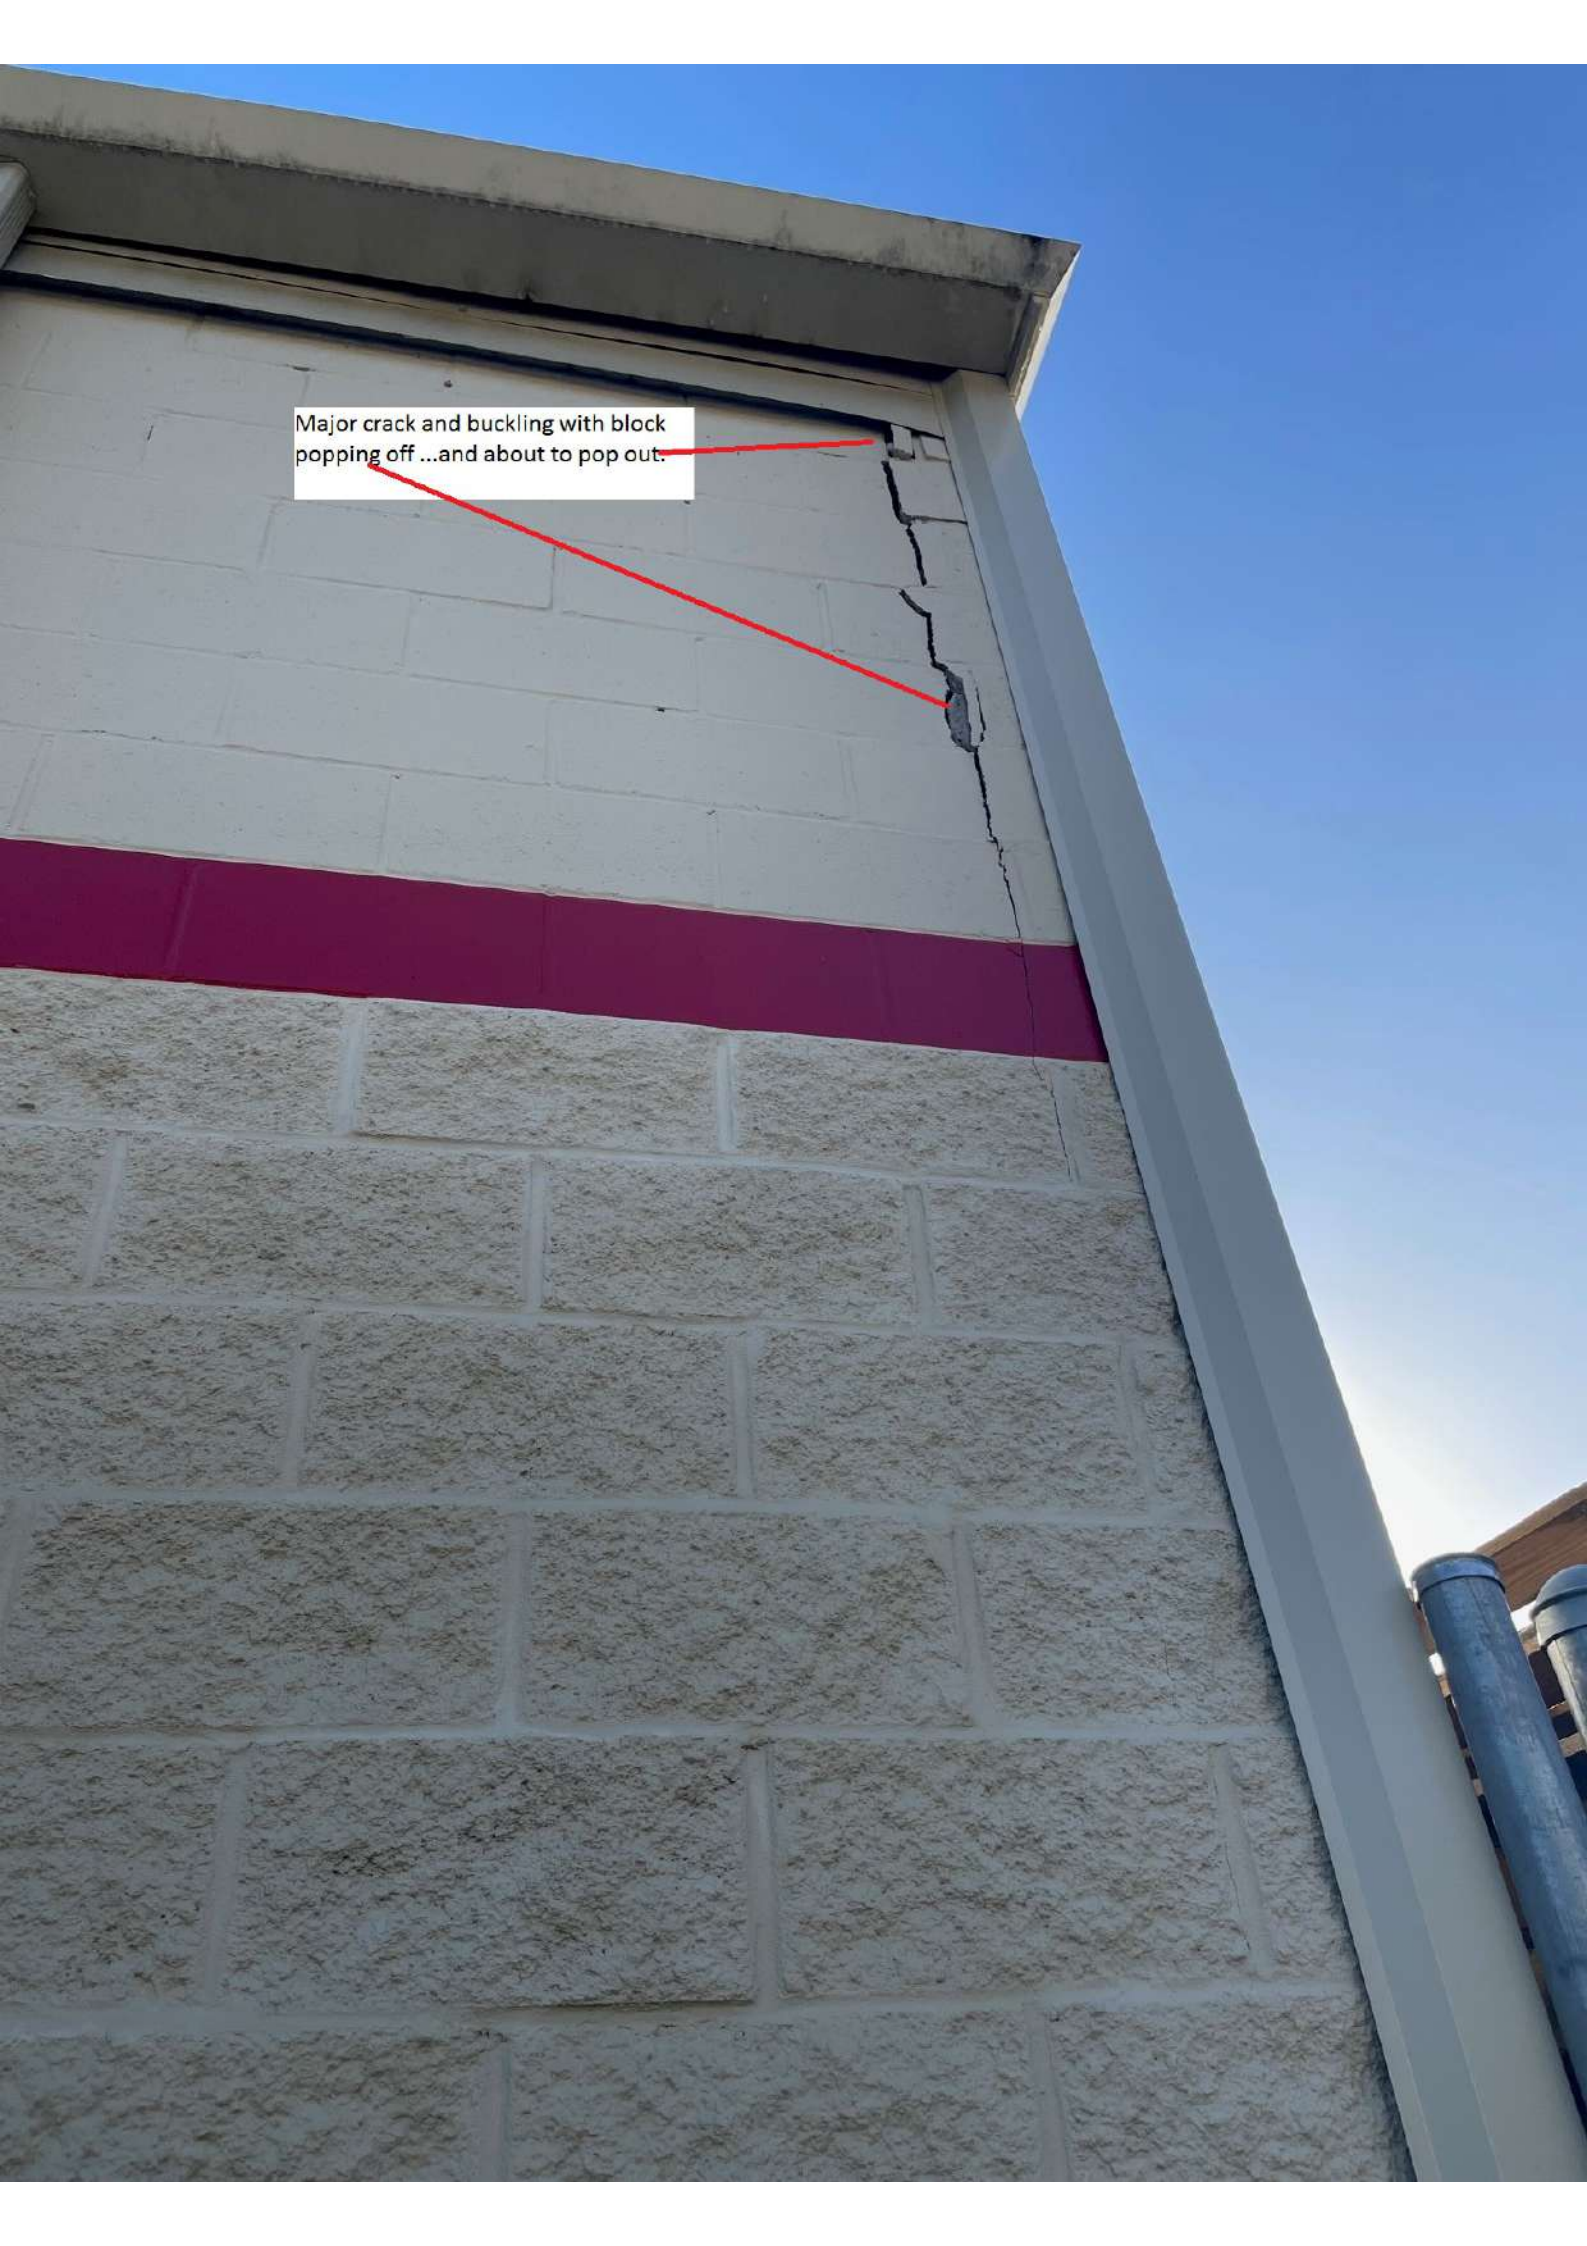

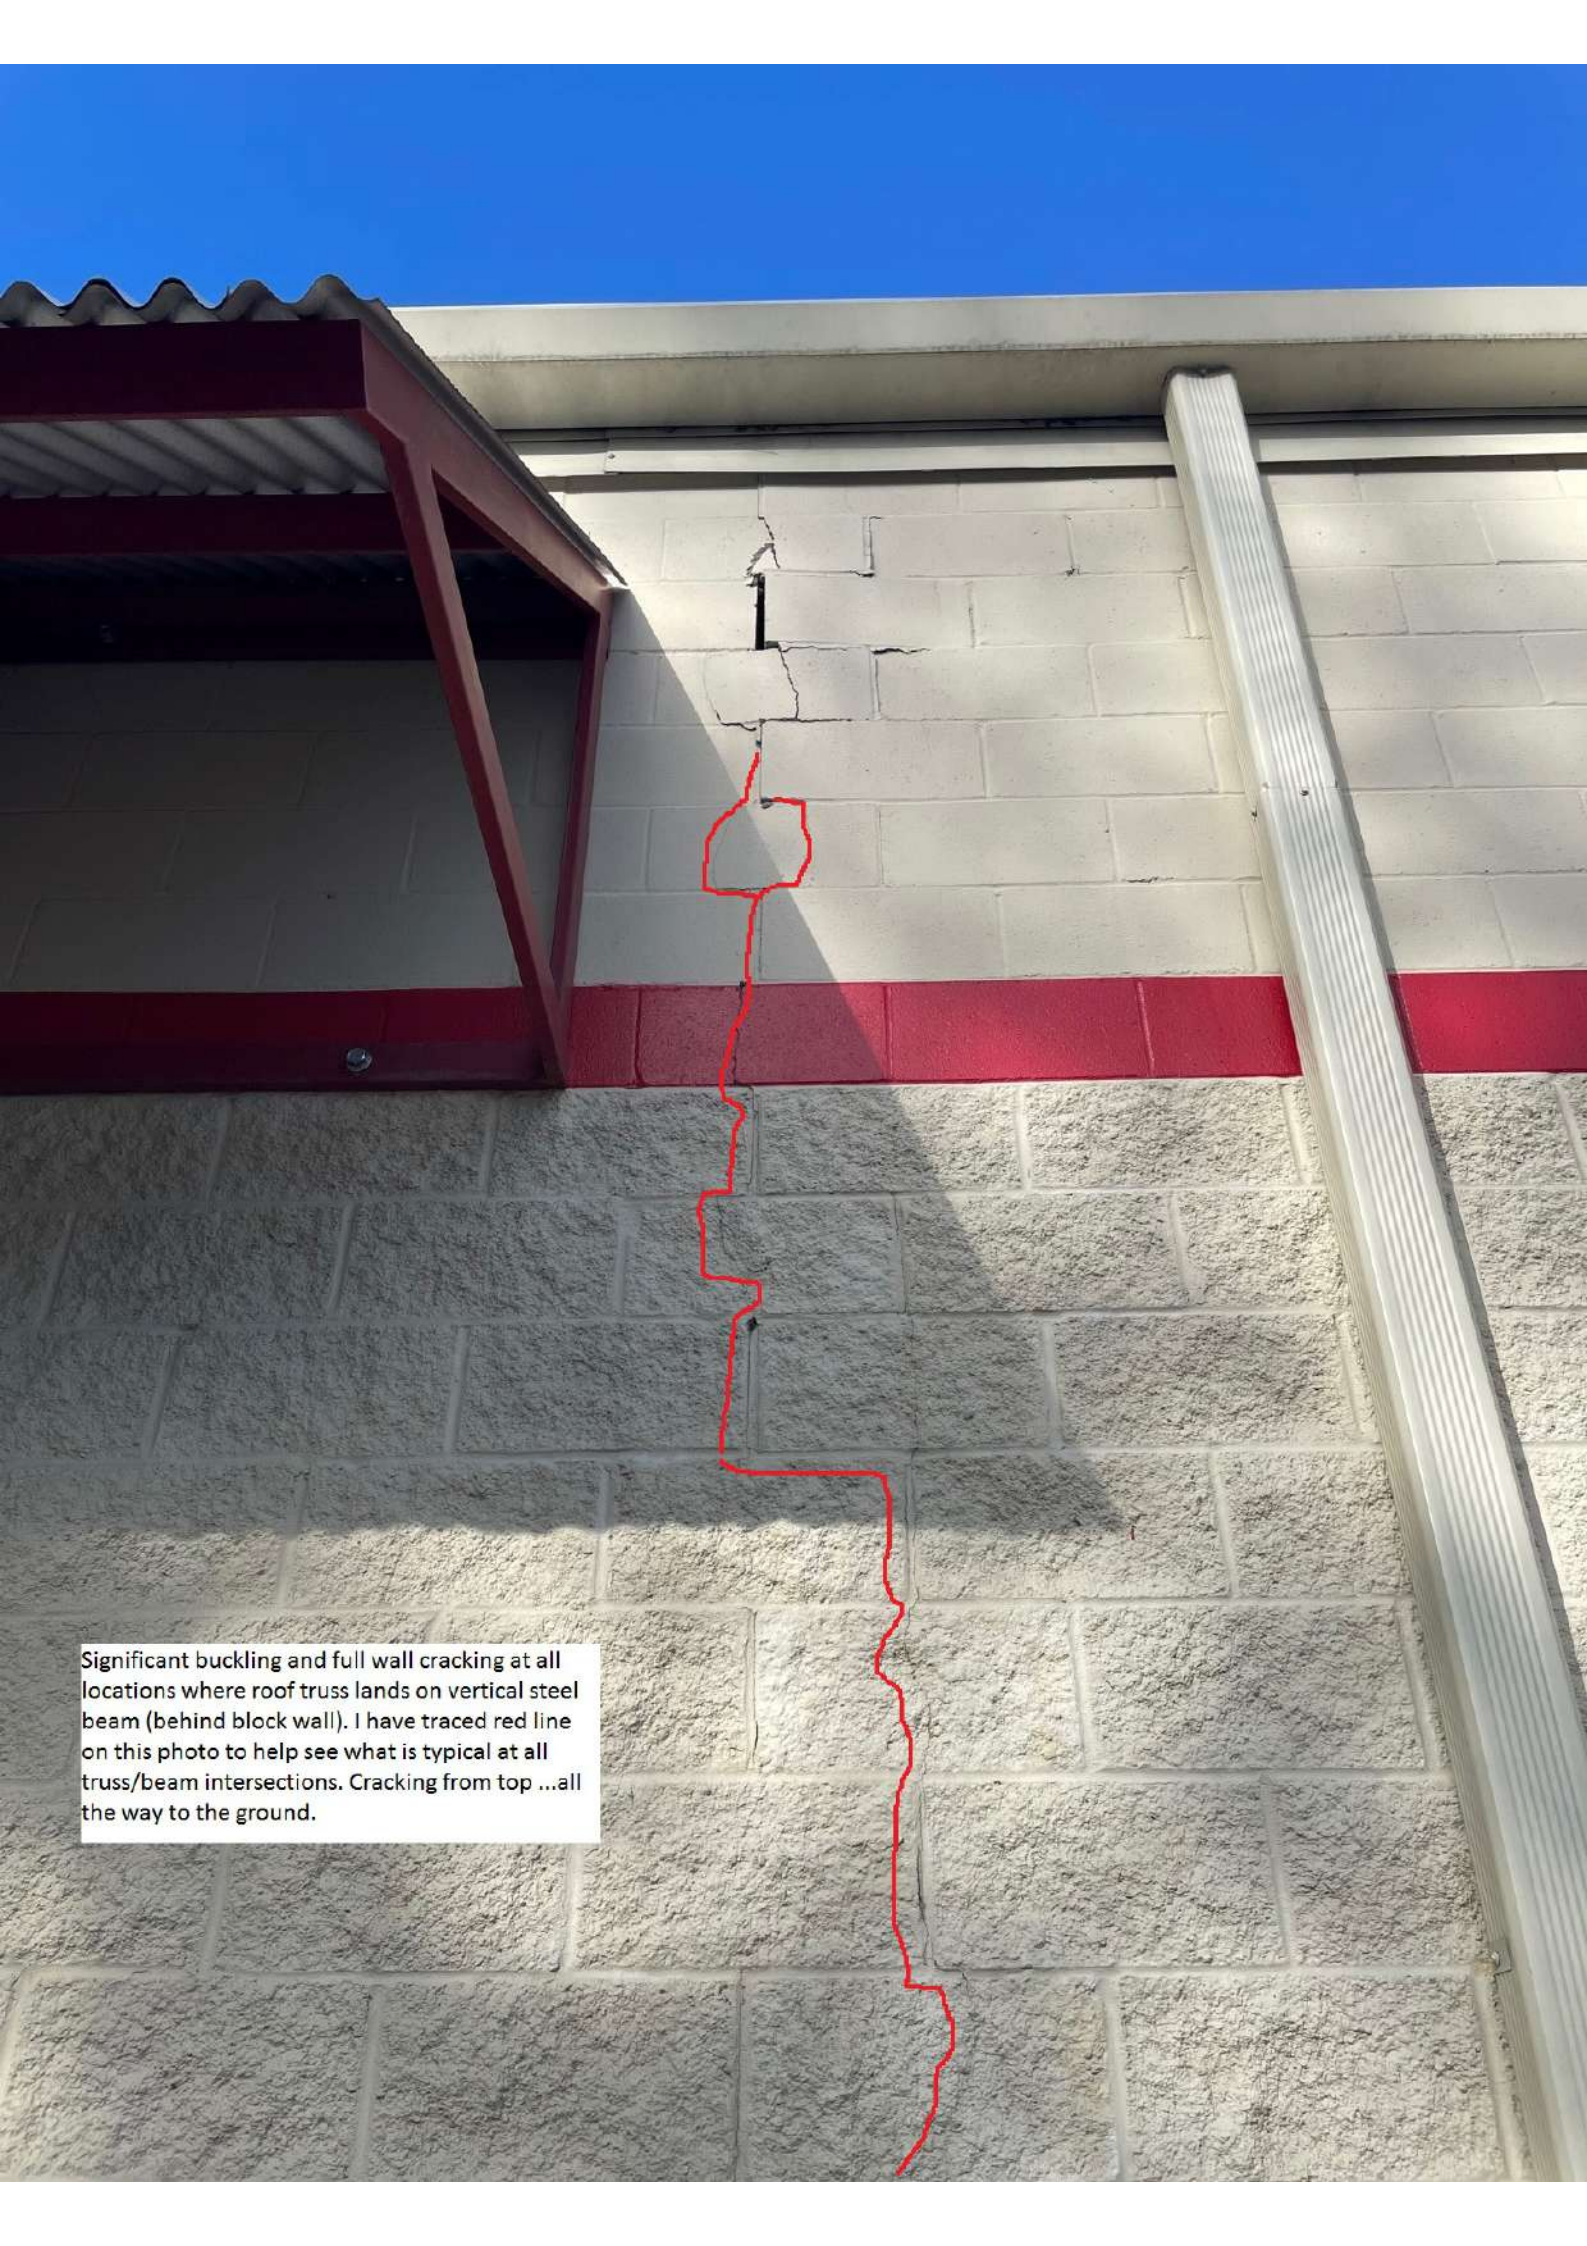

Block facade has popped off here. Directly behind hole is a steel beam holding a roof truss.

A photograph showing a close-up of a light-colored stone wall. A vertical crack runs down the wall, starting from the top and extending past the middle. In the foreground, there is a blue emergency water tap with a white handle. To the right of the wall, there is a chain-link fence supported by a metal post. The background shows a glimpse of an interior space with some furniture.

Ladies restroom is directly opposite this location.
They can see out the building while seated.

Major crack and buckling with block popping off ...and about to pop out.

Significant buckling and full wall cracking at all locations where roof truss lands on vertical steel beam (behind block wall). I have traced red line on this photo to help see what is typical at all truss/beam intersections. Cracking from top ...all the way to the ground.
